

Usage of treated surface water

Some surface water is also suitable for use for low-grade purposes. Quality is a particularly important factor when using surface water. The quality of the water can vary as a result of inflow of water into the water system and quality fluctuations resulting from high temperatures.